

Abstract

A polishing device has a shank and at least one polishing disk arranged on one end of the shank, that can be friction-fixed by two stops one opposite another. The polishing device has a protective element preventing contact between the surface to be polished and the shank end or stop.